

A very unusual George III Corrugated Milk Jug made in London in 1792 by Charles Aldridge.

Sold

Description

This very rare piece is modelled in a very unusual oval form with corrugated sides. This piece has a plain harp shaped handle and "sparrow beak" pouring spout, which is very unusually engraved on both sides with a contemporary Crest. The interior is gilded and the base displays a set of crisp hallmarks. This piece is in excellent condition, is of a very good weight and gauge. Corrugated Teapots are very rare to come across, however this is the first time we have ever seen a corrugated cream pitcher. Charles Aldridge was a very fine silversmith, first in partnership with Henry Green in 1775 and then on his own from 1784 with workshops with workshops in Aldersgate Street, London. Height: 3.5 inches, 8.75 cm.Length: 4.6 inches, 11.5 cm.Width: 2.5 inches, 6.25 cmWeight: 8oz.