

A rare George III Frying Pan Caddy Spoon made in Birmingham in 1810 by William Pugh.

£675

Description

The Caddy Spoon is modelled as a frying pan with circular bowl decorated with concentric engine turned designs around a central flower head boss. The raised border displays trailing foliate designs on a linear ground. The plain, bifurcated, handle is very well marked on the reverse. This piece is in excellent condition. This very rare design was nearly always produced in the workshops of William Pugh, however examples seldom appear on the market.

Length: 2.6 inches, 6.5cm.
